Site Plan

The site of faces the remaining building of the old gasworks, which is now a café and restaurant. Together they form a square where people from the CiBoGa area and other Groningen neighborhoods come to socialize. The courtyard is open to the public during the day and forms part of CiBoGa's intimate street structure. The rhythmic façade, composed of brick and wood, together with the sculptural pentagonal shape of Ebbingehof, contrasts with the neighboring orthogonal, brick buildings, lending an inviting and distinctive character to the neighborhood.
